照片	 The image consists of two side-by-side black and white photographs. Both photographs show a close-up of a person's hand using a syringe-like tool to press a pimple on the face of a doll. The doll's face is the central focus, and the hand is positioned to apply pressure to a bump on the skin. The background is a textured surface, possibly a bedsheet or a towel. The left photograph shows the tool being applied to the pimple, while the right photograph shows the tool being pulled away, with the pimple appearing to be flattened or popped.
