◆試回答第 33. - 35. 題：

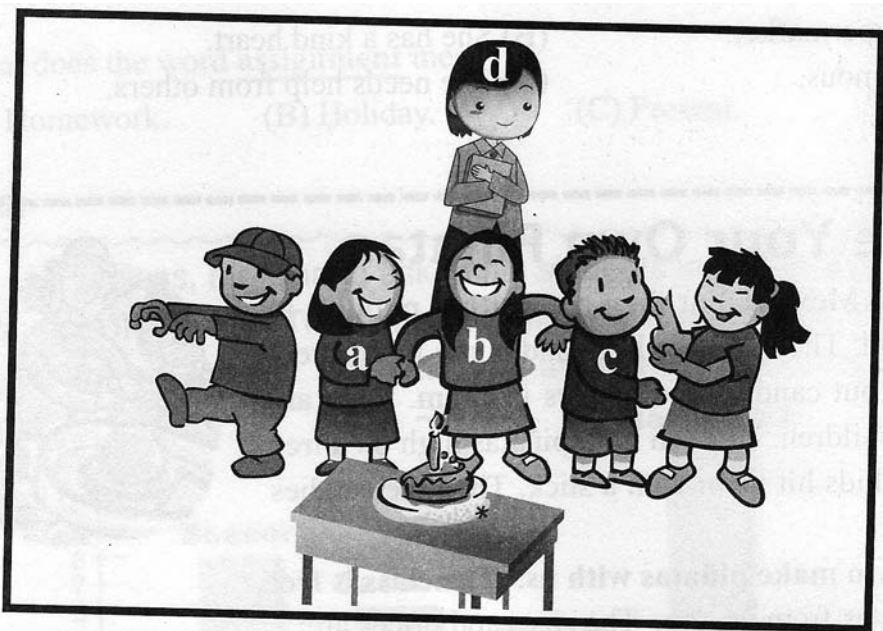

Hi, Kelly, October 24

How are you? I miss all of you very much.

I was afraid on my first day at the new school, but the teachers and the students here were nice to me. They talked to me and showed me around the school.

Here is a picture for you. Look at the picture. Yesterday was my birthday. We were celebrating in the classroom. Everyone was very happy. The cake was from my new classmates. Do you remember Laura, the girl with us in last summer camp? I'm surprised she is in my new class. She is standing next to me. The woman standing behind me is my English teacher. The others are my new classmates. I like them very much. Remember to write me back and tell me about those old friends.

Love,
Cathy

◆試回答第 38. - 40. 題：

Do you borrow things? You probably do. You borrow a pencil from a classmate or a book from a friend. You may borrow money sometimes. But do you know the English language borrows, too? It borrows words from other languages. For example, the word “typhoon” comes from Chinese, so does the word “tofu.” But English speakers pronounce it “toe-fu” instead of “doh-fu.” English speakers use the words “dentist,” “fiancé,” and “ballet.” These words are not English; they are French. And words like “jungle” and “shampoo” come from Hindi. English also borrows words from Italian. Words like “umbrella” and “desk” are Italian. Latin lends a lot of words to the English language, too. Many of the English word roots come from Latin. If you can speak English, then you know a lot of words from many languages. You speak more languages than you think.

probably 或許；大概 pronounce 發音
instead 不是…而是 speaker 說話者 French 法文

38. What does “It” in line 4 mean?
(A) Language. (B) English.
(C) Money. (D) Pencil.
39. Which English word is from French?
(A) Typhoon. (B) Dentist.
(C) Shampoo. (D) Umbrella.
40. Which is true about the English language?
(A) “Fiance” is borrowed from Italian.
(B) Many English root words come from Chinese.
(C) English only borrows words from other languages in Europe(歐洲).
(D) The pronunciation(發音) of some words changed when they became English.
